Man sought in three-province crime spree

Police are searching for a man who rammed an RCMP cruiser in Irricana, Alta., with a Ford F350 stolen from Perdue, Sask.

Tyler Darren Leeder is wanted for a parole violation and armed robberies in Wadena and in Somerset, Man.

On Sunday, an officer with the Beiseker RCMP stopped a truck with Alberta plate WVE 943 for speeding in Irricana. The truck reversed, hit the cruiser and sped away. The officer pursued and the driver rammed the cruiser again, police said.

Leeder has tattoos on his neck and both hands. He is white, with blond hair and blue eyes, and may be with a female accomplice. He is believed to be armed and dangerous and officers are asking the public not to approach him but to call 911 or Crime Stoppers (1-800-222-TIPS).

City mulls raising bridge spending

Saskatoon's executive committee has passed a motion to raise the allowed spending for the Traffic Bridge to $925,000 from $400,000.

The extra $525,000 came as a result of recommendations the committee will submit to council and includes $300,000 to test the load weight of existing piers, $125,000 to prepare the request for proposal (RFP) and $100,000 to remove one span of the bridge and accommodate an existing 14.4V power line.

Though funding for the full project is not available, Mayor Donald Atchison, says having the project ready to go is important in case funding does become available.

"We're into it for $400,000 already.... So for us to start talking about how we're only going to go halfway through and stop now, I think we need to get it on the shelf," he said. "It's good to be planning for the future."

Saskatchewan RCMP officers seized 27 long-barrel rifles, an AK-47 assault rifle, a sawed-off shotgun and 12 handguns from an Aberdeen home on Friday.

Police also seized three swords and several thousand rounds of ammunition, said RCMP spokesman Cpl. Rob King said.

"I don't know if it's the largest, but it's a significant seizure to get this many weapons back into our custody," he said.

Bruce Lafreniere, 62, faces 15 charges ranging from improper storage to possessing illegal weapons and devices, King said. He appeared in court Monday and will be held until a hearing set for Wednesday.

Outside of the court, his son Michael Lafreniere said he was upset by the way police treated his family and released information to the public about the guns.

"They're not telling you they're all registered," he said.

The guns were all legal and, as far as he knew, properly stored, he said. The AK-47 was a kit bought from a gun show and was not assembled or in operation, he said.

His father was a gun instructor and a competitive shooter, he said.

"He taught me," he said. King said he didn't know if the seizure would have any benefit to public safety.

"As far as we're aware, none of these weapons were ever used in criminal activity. They were personally owned by the person charged with unsafe storage," he said.

The guns were seized when officers with the Saskatoon RCMP and a member of the National Weapons Enforcement Team executed a search warrant on the home.

Michael Lafreniere said he believes the search of his father's house stemmed from a family complaint.

"There's a divorce in the mix," he said. "It's just getting dirty now."

Glenn Penner. City councillor announces retirement

Veteran city councillor Glen Penner will not be running in the October municipal election.

"If I run again, by the time that term's over I'll be a bit older than I am today," Penner said at Monday's executive-committee meeting. "It's time to move on and somebody else to move in."

Mayor Donald Atchison offered some kind words about the councillor and his service on council over the past four decades.

"He's able to cut to the chase and define the argument very, very distinctly, and I think that people don't realize how valuable he is sometimes," he said. "He's really going to be missed."

At least two people have announced their desire to replace him.

Eric Olauson, an IT project manager who describes himself as "a fiscal and social conservative," will announce his candidacy soon, he said.

"I have the utmost respect for Coun. Penner. He was first elected in 1972 when I was just moving into the ward as a one-year-old," Olauson said. "He's always made the right decision for the ward. It doesn't matter if that was a popular decision, he always had our best interest at heart."

Glenn Penner CONTRIBUTED

Ainsley Robertson, a co-founder of the Princess Shop, who will be 25 years old by election day, announced her candidacy on Monday morning before she learned that Penner planned to retire.

"Coun. Penner has provided great service for the people of Saskatoon. He's provided years and years of service and he's been a great councillor," she said. "I would be thrilled to be able to fill in now."

Government needs to do more: AIDS workers

Cost. Acute care for people with HIV-AIDS is estimated at $40 million Front-line health-care workers tending to infected clients warn that the Saskatchewan government is not doing enough as the incidence of HIV-AIDS in Saskatchewan continues to outpace that of other Canadian provinces.

Doctors from the Westside Community Clinic (WCC), located on 20th Avenue in downtown Saskatoon, point out that even though Saskatchewan is No. 1 in incidence of HIV (in 2009, there were 23.6 cases per 100,000 people in Saskatchewan versus the national average of 8.6 cases per 100,000) and is also No. 1 in AIDS-related deaths in Canada (roughly nine in every 100,000) the government has a long way to go before the proper resources are in place.

"We've got so many people already infected," said Ryan Meili, a doctor at the WCC. "We have to worry about those people's lives and getting them access to treatment and care and we're having a really hard time doing that."

Meili said one of the biggest challenges in addressing the infection is the stigma associated with HIV and drug addiction, adding most people infected with HIV or AIDS are part of a marginalized population and have a harder time getting help.

"HIV is the latter stage of the stigma and is almost the latter stages of a life-long condition of being marginalized," he said.

Jim Myers, director of disease prevention with the Ministry of Health, said the Saskatchewan government has put in a lot of time and effort into increasing the capacity of front-line service delivery over the past two years.

The government has worked with regional health authorities to get workers out on the street testing and treating people. And last year it funded in excess of 20 different projects throughout Saskatchewan.

Morris Markentin, a doctor at the Westside Community Clinic who specializes in addictions and works with people infected with HIV every day, says there is a dire need for more on-the-ground support for those at risk of contracting the disease.

"We definitely need more resources," said Markentin. "We lack methadone prescribers, we lack addiction counsellors and we lack trauma counsellors."

Markentin said there's a

The ministry also launched a social-marketing campaign in 2011 aimed at raising awareness about the disease and addressing discrimination and stigmatization.

"We're going to continue that social-marketing campaign this year and there will be a specific stigma and discrimination angle to that campaign," he said.

The province does have an HIV strategy in place, but Meili said the funding outlined from 2010-14, coming in at roughly $2.5 million a year, is not enough. He said the province's HIV-AIDS strategy pegs the cost of acute care at $40 million a year.

"We need to base our treatment on the quality of people's lives and the characteristics of people's lives," he said. "We really have to adapt the way we bring treatment. We're not acting fast enough."

MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Ministry: No supervised-injection site

Both Morris Markentin and Ryan Meili said one of the most important steps to get the spread of HIV-AIDS under control is to mirror places like B.C., which has dealt with similar issues through a supervised-injection site and other supports.

And although the opinions of these two doctors are shared in the province's HIV-support system, Saskatchewan's Ministry of Health says it's working to address the problem by different means.

When asked if safe-injection sites like Insite in Vancouver are something the ministry is looking at, Jim Myers replied:

"That's really just not a fit here in the province, and we have no designs on doing that. We've taken other steps when it comes to harm-reduction strategies."

He continued, "Our numbers have been declining in Saskatoon, so there has been some flattening of the numbers.... We're seeing similar numbers on a monthly basis, so I think some of our interventions are beginning to take effect."

The government also has in place a provincial leadership team made up of specialists and doctors that is working to address the problem.

MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

On-ground supports lacking, doctors warn six-month wait for counsellors and a three-month wait for methadone treatment.

"If they're HIV-negative and we can't get them into treatment, that's three months where they could become positive."

Markentin said the chances of someone becoming HIV-positive while waiting for treatment are high. If an opiate addict injects six times a day over three months, they have 540 chances of being exposed to the disease.

He said one of the main reasons there isn't more aggressive funding going towards getting the spread of HIV under control comes down to the fact there isn't enough interest from people in charge.

"How many of my HIV patients do you think vote? Zero," said Markentin.

"The time when this will hit the crisis is when the wives of suburbanites go to their doctors with HIV from the men who are using the services of my patients on the streets."

Morris Markentin MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

"Then all hell will break loose."

MARRIED WITH KIDS

With two children in public school, a home in a suburb of Calgary, and an annual household income of $70,000, Peter and Kim have learned how to make the most of their money — and make it work for them.

Peter, 34, is an office manager at a downtown firm while Kim, 30, has just returned to the workforce and has a part-time job at a department store. They have a long-term financial goal to pay off their mortgage by the time Peter turns 60, and they have retirement and education savings plans in place too.

“We’re especially good at stretching our budget on food,” says Peter. “We plan meals ahead, shop the specials flyers and always pack lunches.” The couple also manages with one car. “On the days I’m scheduled to work nights, I drop him off at the C Train — and he takes public transit,” says Kim.

They’ve found other ways to save money too. For example, a few years ago they got a Scotia Momentum® VISA® card that they now use to pay for as many everyday purchases as they can.

The Scotia Momentum® VISA® card provides 2 per cent cash back on everyday spending such as gas, groceries, drugstore items, and recurring bill payments, and 1 per cent cash back on all other eligible purchases. While the annual fee for the card is $39, there’s always a much higher return at the end of the year.

Every November (when the payout is made), the cash back lump sum is automatically deposited into their joint savings account.

“It’s a no-brainer,” says Kim. “And every purchase we make contributes to our annual cash back from the bank. It’s become a great savings tool for us too,” says Kim.

Residents of Saskatoon may come to dread this sign more as parking fines could be doubling. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Parking fines to increase pending council approval

Violators targeted.

Businesses say low parking turnover defeats purpose of meters

MORGAN MODJESKI

morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

Residents of Saskatoon may be seeing an increase in parking-ticket fines as the city's executive committee recently passed a motion that could see violations increase by $10.

Angela Gardiner, manager of the transportation branch with the City of Saskatoon, said the new violation price would help parking meters in Saskatoon better serve their purpose and decrease the number of people violating parking restrictions.

"That's the whole point of parking meters, to provide that turnover to the adjacent businesses," said Gardiner.

"What we're seeing is a significant increase in those types of tickets over the last year. The recommendation that the executive committee brought forward was to increase that to $20 to hopefully offset and provide some incentive for people to pay the $2 an hour at the parking meter, as opposed to risking getting a $10 ticket."

Sarah Marchildon, executive director of the Broadway Business Improvement District (BBID), said she's in favour of the increase, adding that she thinks current violations hurt businesses.

"(Parking meters) were put in certain areas of the city — mainly the BID areas — so we could increase parking turnover, because in front of your store, that's exactly what you want," said Marchildon.

"What we're looking for is increased compliance, so raising the violation price is an attempt to promote and essentially enforce proper use of parking meters. We know darn well that a $10 ticket is cheaper than plugging that meter for the full day ... so too many are conveniently parking for a small daily fee of a $10 parking ticket."

Even though the start date of the new violation rates is set for June 1, a motion to modify Bylaw 7200, the traffic bylaw, would have to go before and be passed by city council before it comes into effect.

Administration also said the city is looking to include other methods of payment for parking meters, adding new options will be rolled out in a future parking revamp expected for spring 2013.

The $50 fine for violations paid after the 14-day period will remain the same.

Internal investigation. SPS officer faces break- and-enter, theft charges

A Saskatoon police communications officer is facing break-and-enter, theft and mischief charges stemming from a domestic dispute in Vanscoy.

Special Const. Fay Sanders, 58, is an 11-year veteran of the police service. Saskatoon police released few details about the charges, saying only that the incident occurred on 1st Avenue in Vanscoy on March 28.

"It's not our investigation, it's an RCMP investigation," said communications manager Alyson Edwards.

RCMP spokesman Cpl. Rob King directed questions about the incident to the Saskatoon Police Service.

Sanders went on leave from the Saskatoon Police Service prior to the incident, but Edwards would not say why she went on leave, or when.

Sanders is facing an internal investigation conducted by the Saskatoon Police Service and may receive disciplinary sanctions, Edwards said.

The average weekly earnings in Saskatchewan jumped 2.7 per cent from January 2011 to January 2012, making Saskatchewanians some of the highest-paid employees in Canada.

Average weekly earnings came in at $907.44 during that period. Only resource-rich Alberta ($1,065) and Newfoundland and Labrador ($919) boasted higher average weekly earnings amongst the provinces, according to a recent report from Statistics Canada. The national average is $888.

"(Weekly earnings have) been growing for quite awhile," said Jeannine Usalcas, a labour analyst with StatsCan. "We're seeing that it's really gone above the national average since August 2011."

Unemployment

Saskatchewan has an unemployment rate of 5 per cent, compared to 7.4 per cent nationally.

The province also saw a 2.8 per cent growth in non-farm payroll employment — the second-fastest growth rate in the country behind Alberta. Saskatchewan nearly doubled the national average of 1.5 per cent.

According to StatsCan, the growth was widespread across goods and services industries. Professional, scientific and technical services saw the largest bump, along with manufacturing, transportation, warehousing, construction and "other services."

All good news — despite the fact Saskatchewanians are working less. In the 12 months leading up to January 2012, average weekly hours worked declined 0.9 per cent, from 33 hours to 32.7 hours. That's below the national average of 32.9 hours.

Michael Rafferty trial. Jurors view site where Stafford's body found Jurors in the case of a man accused of first-degree murder in the death of Victoria Stafford were given a first-hand look Monday at the farmer's field where the eight-year-old was killed.

They were at the scene southeast of Mount Forest, Ont., where the judge said he hoped the jurors would get a better understanding of the evidence.

Members of the media were allowed to view the area once the jury had left.

On Friday, the panel saw video and photos of where Tori's remains were found in July 2009, wrapped in a garbage bag and buried under a pile of rocks in a farmer's field.

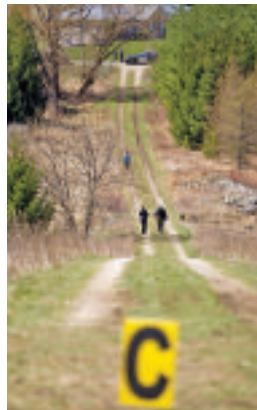

Tori disappeared outside her Woodstock, Ont., elementary school on April 8, 2009, and she was allegedly killed the same day in the rural area more than 100 kilometres north of her hometown.

Michael Rafferty, 31, has pleaded not guilty to first-degree murder, sexual assault causing bodily harm and kidnapping.

Terri-Lynne McClintic, 21, is already serving a life sentence after pleading guilty to first-degree murder in Tori's death.

When McClintic confessed and later pleaded guilty, she said Rafferty had killed Tori using a hammer, but at the trial she testified it was she who dealt the fatal blows.

Deadly shooting brings scenes of horror to school

A gunman opened fire Monday at a small Christian university in California, killing at least seven people, wounding three more and setting off an intense, chaotic manhunt that ended with his capture at a nearby shopping centre, authorities said.

Police Chief Howard Jordan said Monday that One L. Goh is in custody after surrendering at a shopping centre about an hour after the shooting at Oikos University on Monday morning.

Authorities say he was a former student at the Christian school.

The gunfire erupted around midmorning at Oikos University. Heavily armed officers swarmed the school in a large industrial park near the Oakland airport and, for at least an hour, believed the gunman could still be inside.

Art Richards said he was driving by the university on his way to pick up a friend when he spotted a woman hiding in the bushes and pulled over. When he approached her, she said, "I'm shot" and showed him her arm.

"She had a piece of her arm hanging out," Richards said, noting that she was wounded near the elbow.

As police arrived, Richards said he heard 10 gunshots coming from inside the building. The female victim told him that she saw the gunman shoot one person point-blank in the chest and one in the head.

At Highland Hospital, Dawinder Kaur's family told the Oakland Tribune that she was being treated for a gunshot to her elbow.

The U.S. Army Reservist told her family that the gunman was a student in her nursing class who had been absent for months before returning Monday. The gunman entered the classroom and ordered students to line up against the wall.

When he showed his gun, students began running and he opened fire, her family said.

"She told me that a guy went crazy and she got shot," brother Paul Singh told the newspaper. "She was running. She was crying; she was bleeding, it was wrong."

Television footage showed heavily armed officers swarming the building and also showed bloodied victims on stretchers being loaded into ambulances. Several bodies covered in sheets were laid out on a patch of grass at the school.

For at least an hour after the shooting began, police thought the shooter could still be on campus. Police believe the shooter acted alone, though they have not discussed a possible motive.

Court sentences bin Laden's family

A Pakistani court sentenced Osama bin Laden's three widows and two of his daughters to 45 days in prison on Monday for illegally living in the country, ordering them deported when the sentence ends, their lawyer said.

With credit for time served, the women and several of their other children will leave Pakistan later this month, said lawyer Mohammed Amir Khalil. They have been in detention since American commandos killed bin Laden in a large house in the Pakistani town of Abbottabad on May 2, but they were formally charged with immigration offences only last month. The Americans left the women and children behind in the house after they flew off with bin Laden's corpse.

The women may have information about how bin Laden managed to remain undetected for close to 10 years after the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks in the U.S. The youngest, 30-year-old Yemeni wife Amal Ahmed Abdel-Fatah al-Sada, has told investigators bin Laden lived in five houses while on the run and fathered four children, two of whom were born in Pakistani government hospitals.

Labour. Machinists union heading to court

The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAMAW) said Monday the union will take the government to court over the measure known as Bill C-33 used to prevent some 8,300 IAMAW members from striking on March 12.

The challenge by the machinists follows a similar filing by the union representing the company's pilots, who filed a suit in Ontario Superior Court last month.

Both groups, which together represent more than 11,000 airline employees, are the last group of workers without updated collective agreements.

The pilots said the law that forces them to fly and accept a contract imposed by arbitration is contrary to Canada's Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

The machinists union said the move has now thrust it into an arbitration process it calls biased, removing its Charter right to free association.

Lawsuit. U.S. accuses RBC of sham trading

Royal Bank is defending itself against what it calls "absurd" allegations from U.S. regulators that it engaged in hundreds of millions of dollars in sham futures trades to reap tax benefits on its holdings of company stocks.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission lawsuit filed Monday says Royal Bank also concealed the true nature of the trades and made false statements to a futures trading exchange.

The activity, so-called "wash trading" is an illegal stock trading practice in which an investor simultaneously buys and sells shares in a company through two different brokers, usually to avoid taxes.

Royal Bank defended its position in a statement, saying that it consulted stock exchanges and the commission itself for guidance when the trades were made and there was no objection from either.

Global trade. Bank of Canada governor issues sternest warning to date about the country's lagging export record

Canada's economy is underperforming because firms have failed to take advantage of turbo-speed growth in emerging markets, says Mark Carney, citing the worst post-slump trade performance in six decades.

In a speech prepared for a Kitchener-Waterloo business audience Monday, the Bank of Canada governor characterized the country's export record since 2000 as a dismal failure.

It is the worst post-recession record of any recovery since World War II, he said, adding that aside from the United Kingdom, it is currently the worst in the G20 club of major economic nations.

businesses to turn their attention away from traditional markets like the U.S. and focus on booming economies in Asia.

"Exports have not regained their pre-crisis peak, and in fact remain below their level of a decade ago," he said.

Referring to Canada's current economy, Carney had relatively positive things to say.

With Europe's debt problems improving and as the U.S. recovery picks up steam, the headwinds that have held back Canada's economy are abating.

For the economy to expand in the future, it must ramp up on exports, and businesses must become more innovative and invest in machinery and equipment, he said.

Employment. Aveos workers move on Aveos Fleet Performance employees are moving from anger to action as they try to find new jobs while union and government officials are trying to find a buyer for the shuttered aircraft maintenance company.

Former employees lined up at a Montreal airport hotel early Monday to be among the first to meet with recruiters who attended one of two job fairs being organized by their former colleagues.

Spokeswoman Pascale Lambert said employees aren't waiting to see if Air Canada will rehire them or if behind-the-scenes efforts will lead to the company being sold or restarted.

"It would be very nice, but I'm not sure it's actually going to happen, so that's why we decided to put a plan in action to find a job and not wait and see if somebody is going to do something to save this company," she said in an interview.

More than 2,600 Aveos employees lost their jobs after Aveos shut down three main plants in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Montreal, as well as other facilities in Edmonton, Calgary and Trenton and Mississauga, Ont., last month.

JUNK FOOD: A CURE FOR THE COMMON CRAVING

SHE SAYS...
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca/shesays

Last week I was terribly sick in the sore-throat, runny-nose, end-of-days kind of way that everyone experiences during this awful, not-quite-winter, not-quite-spring time of year.

According to common cold logic, being sick gives you licence to do things you wouldn't usually do. I spent my recovery period watching bad romantic comedies and eating junk food. Yes, instead of loading up on oranges and soothing chicken noodle soup I found myself shame-eating instant mac and cheese alone in bed. I'm not proud of it people.

Ninety per cent of the time I worship at the altar of kale salads and cauliflower pizza crust, but when my immune system is down I turn to comfort food. While it makes me feel better in the very immediate short term, flu-related bingeing almost always results in a trans-fat induced spiral of regret.

Eat like our ancestors

One of the latest food fads, the Paleo Diet, has modern men and women mimicking the presumed dietary patterns of ancient cave-dwelling hominids.

2012 edition of Really Obvious Facts, ahem, I mean, the journal of Public Health Nutrition. The research revealed that individuals who consume fast food on a regular basis are 51 per cent more likely to develop depression symptoms, compared to those who eat little or none. We can assume the appendix of the study was titled DUH!

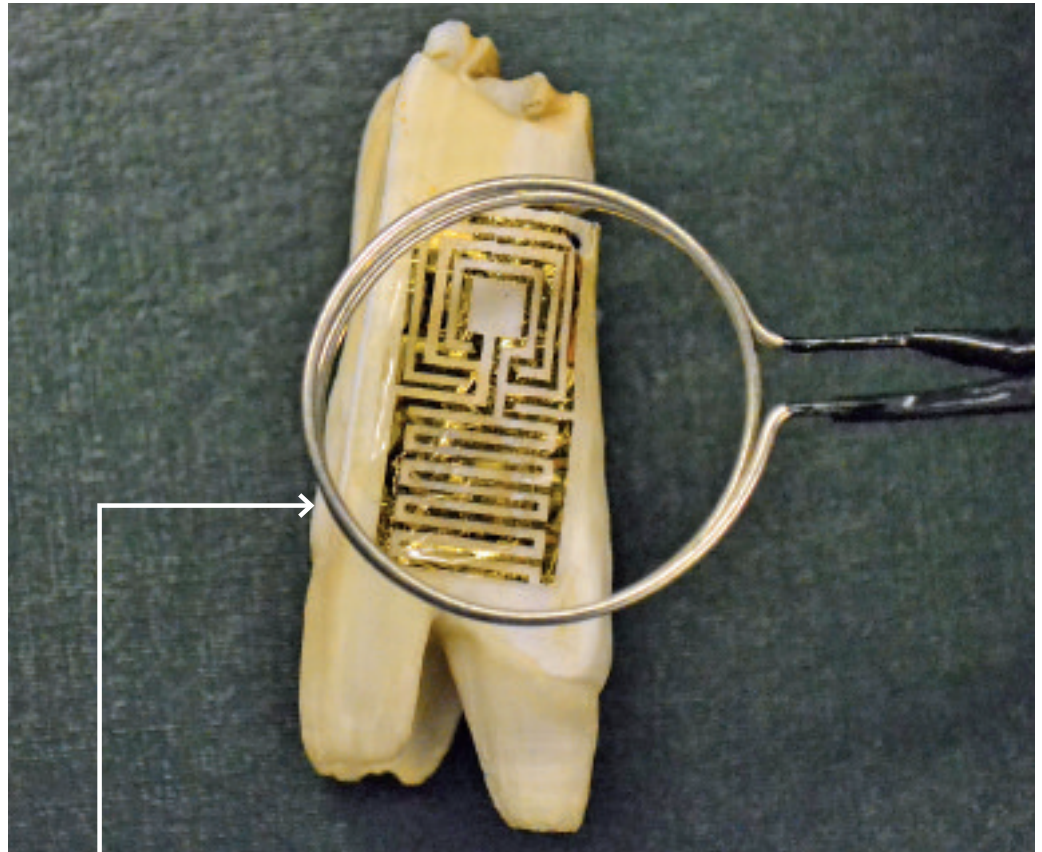

But even though we know better (pink slime anyone?) why do we give in to these unwholesome cravings? It seems that junk food is the culinary equivalent of a Real Housewives franchise: highly processed but surprisingly satisfying.

Sometimes the difficult part isn't knowing what not to eat, but what we actually should be eating. Every week there is a new cancer-causing food group to avoid. Beware, the evils of gluten, renounce your love of dairy, forget the farmed salmon, cut back on raw vegetables ... begin to live in fear of all edibles!

One of the latest food fads, the Paleo Diet, has modern men and women mimicking the presumed dietary patterns of ancient cave-dwelling hominids. Cave-person dieters are limited to Stone Age staples such as fish, root vegetables and nuts while eliminating hunter-gatherer foods such as dairy products, grains, legumes, sugar, salt and basically anything delicious. Personally I prefer to subscribe to the low-maintenance doctrine of "everything in moderation."

Some of the best food-related advice I ever received was this: when you're at the grocery store, shop around the perimeter. Here you'll find fresh fruits and vegetables, lean protein, whole grains — basically the entire rainbow of items featured on Canada's Food Guide. What you won't find: brownies, frozen pizza (in deep dish, pop or pocket form), and yes, sadly instant mac and cheese.

How does this device work?

It's made from graphene, a one-atom-thick layer of carbon that's an excellent conductor. After a student breathed on the tooth we used in the experiment, the molecules interacted with the graphene's sensors and gave an electronic, computer reading.

Any potential benefits?

It'll be able to detect H. pylori, a bacterium that causes stomach ulcers and cancer.

Plus, it also heralds in a new way of detecting diseases.

When do you plan to put this device on the market?

We think in five years' time.

And you think people will put it on their front teeth?

It can be made small to fit on back teeth but could double up as a trendy-looking "tooth tattoo."

Scene in brief

Sheen gets pranked

How about a sequel to The Artist starring Charlie Sheen? The actor says he wouldn't hesitate for one minute if the project was proposed to him. At least, that's what he told a Montreal radio personality who was pretending to be the film's award-winning actor Jean Dujardin. The notorious comedy duo known as the Masked Avengers called up Sheen two weeks after the Oscars and asked him if he would like to be in a sequel. The actor congratulated "Dujardin" on his Oscar win and said he'd love to work with him. The Montreal pranksters have engaged in stunts involving Bill Gates, Britney Spears, Paul McCartney and, perhaps most famously, Sarah Palin during the 2008 U.S. election. This latest one involves Sheen, whose well-documented substance abuse issues and peculiar outbursts have cast a shadow over a once-bright acting career. Sheen was fired last year from Two and a Half Men, at the time the highest-paid gig on TV, and in the phone call appeared eager for more work with the prestigious French actor. "Dujardin" told Sheen the followup to The Artist would be a comedy and the proceeds would go to a good cause. Speaking in a thick accent and at times switching to French, he told Sheen the money be donated to a foundation against dictators, including "(Premier) Jean Charest in Quebec, of course."

'Free to go straight to the action' in season two of popular period drama, The Borgias

The son will rise. The Borgias star François Arnaud promises his character Cesare will be anything but passive this season

scene@metronews.ca

For François Arnaud, the trick to acting on The Borgias is to keep it "real and relatable." That's no easy task considering Arnaud's playing the 15th century black sheep son of a philandering, murdering Pope.

"But the character still has to ring true to people," says the Montreal-born Arnaud, who plays Cesare Borgia in the Gemini-winning period drama, which returns for season two on April 8th.

stylized or theatrical but to keep it lively and modern. The way the relationships work is really no different than how they'd play out today."

In the second season of The Borgias, Cesare continues to find himself on the outs with his father — Pope Alexander (Jeremy Irons). Alexander still favours his much more inept son Juan.

But unlike in the past, Arnaud says his character won't just stay angry. He'll "take action" this season.

"I think, in the first season, he (Cesare) didn't do much because he was very much a teenager. Now, he's very different. He's less angry. He takes responsibility for himself and his family," he says.

"The rivalry with my brother also rises to a new level. And Cesare no longer feels he has to follow his father's wishes. But he doesn't want to be pope himself. No. That comes with a lot of baggage," laughs Arnaud.

Beyond his character, Arnaud promises a more action-packed season for Borgias fans.

"First season of any show, especially a period drama, tends to be expositional. You have to explain the world and set things up. But in this new season, we are free to just go straight to the action."

Season two of The Borgias premieres Apr. 8 at 10 p.m. (ET) on Bravo!

The actor says the experience of shooting just outside Budapest, Hungary, has also proven to be "very exciting."

"Twenty years earlier, they were living in a communist country. So you can really feel a lot of excitement," he says.

"Some of it's good. Some not good. Just since I've been filming there, I see Starbucks springing up."

"There's something sad about that. Like every city in the world is becoming a look-alike."

Adam Sandler has a new record, but it's probably not one he wants to brag about. The actor's gender-bender comedy Jack and Jill — in which he played male and female twins — earned 10 of the 12 Razzies for which it was nominated over the weekend.

The previous record-holder for most wins was Lindsay Lohan's 2006 film I Know Who Killed Me.

Learning archery goes a long way for one hungry actress

Foul smelling urine in young kids may be sign of urinary infection: study

Jennifer Lawrence had to train for months to become a decent archer for The Hunger Games movie. HANDOUT Shooting a bow and arrow isn't as easy as it looks in The Hunger Games. Without steady poise, physical strength and mental focus, it's unlikely you'll hit a target, much less a genetically mutated beastie. Just ask star Jennifer Lawrence, who had to practice so much, she ended up carrying the equipment around in her car.

In order to look and shoot like a professional archer, Lawrence trained with Khatuna Lorig one hour a day, for 15 days. Lorig's first tip: An archer needs to be standing correctly. Holding a bow with a bad posture could cause unnecessary injuries.

"If you're standing correctly you will have less pain and more pleasure," says Lorig. This is how it's done.

The Alignment Drill

How does the body need to be aligned as you shoot?

"First, make sure your shoulders are lined up. From here, hold your bow in your hand and stand perpendicular to your target. Get into position by making a 'T' shape with your arms; open them up bending one arm to your face, touching your chin and using the other arm, your 'bow arm' to aim at the target," explains Lorig.

The advantage of being long and lean

Lawrence has the perfect body for archery. She's tall (around 5-8) with long arms and a long neck.

"Long limbs are perfect for archery as it's easier to get into the alignment drill," adds Lorig. Once Lawrence could handle the bow with ease, Lorig wanted her technique to look natural. Moving on from the static alignment drill, she got her to shoot from longer distances and from a crouching position, with one knee down on the ground — a move she would be required to master on set.

Quote

"The moment you throw the bow back, you need to block everything else out. Isolate all the noises around you and try and stay focused on your technique."

Olympic Archer Khatuna Lorig

Arm strength

Although Lorig admits her only exercise is archery, she doesn't dismiss the benefit of arm strength when it comes to improving technique.

"Arm strength is very important for an archer. Jennifer trained with a 15-pound wooden bow — and the one she uses in the movie was probably lighter than that — but professional archers can hold up 45- to 50-pound bows," explains Lorig.

Adding press ups or light weight lifting to your exercise routine will help build arm strength, allowing you to keep a tighter grip on your bow, which in turn will precise your aiming skills.

Mental focus is crucial when you are aiming

"The moment you throw the bow back, you need to block everything else out. Isolate all the noises around you and try and stay focused on your technique, keeping your mind as sharp as you can," explains Lorig.

How can you get the perfect aim?

According to Lorig, there's no trick to having the perfect aim.

"The trick is training all day, every day and shooting about 400 to 500 arrows each time. Without practice, there's no way you'll make the perfect shot."

On a scale of one to 10, how does Lorig rate Lawrence's archery skills?

"I would give her a seven or eight out of 10. Her performance in the movie was very good considering I didn't train her on set."

A climber's agility

In order to perfect Katniss's

Core strength and flexibility

On her rest days, Lawrence stretched and flexed her muscles with some Yoga and Pilates. Both techniques help relax the mind and strengthen core muscles.

Easter

Time to hunt some eggs again

CHARLES THE BUTLER
askcharlesthebutler@metronews.ca
For more, visit charlesmacpherson.com

With Easter just around the corner, I thought I'd offer up some tips for those families, or churches and social groups, considering doing an Easter-egg hunt. Here are a few ways to ensure it's a success.

1. Think about the age group. This is one activity where mixing young kids with older ones doesn't always work. Consider a toddler egg hunt and an older children's egg hunt to keep things fair.

2. If treats are to be hidden inside the eggs, mix up what the children will find. Putting the same surprise in each egg will be a disappointment, no matter how cheap you found them at a big-box store.

3. Talk to your kids ahead of time. There are inevitably going to be a few skirmishes where kids fight over an egg they find at the same time. As hard as it is, this is a good opportunity to teach your kids about sharing. Parents, this is your job!

4. A way to deal with No. 3 is to assign children a colour, so that they have to find eggs only of one particular colour. This should help avoid disputes.

5. Plan an adult-friendly gathering while the children are hunting, and remember to let them have fun. Don't stress about grass stains on clothing; just let the kids run out and play. Besides, in an upcoming article, I promise to tell you all about dealing with those pesky grass stains!

Happy Easter to all of you who celebrate this wonderful holiday.

I am currently in Abu Dhabi training for two weeks, yet my gracious hosts from this part of the world are taking me out for lunch on Sunday in celebration of my holiday — how lucky am I to have such a gracious host?

Think about age groups when planning your hunt. ISTOCK

Examining The Mama's Boy Myth

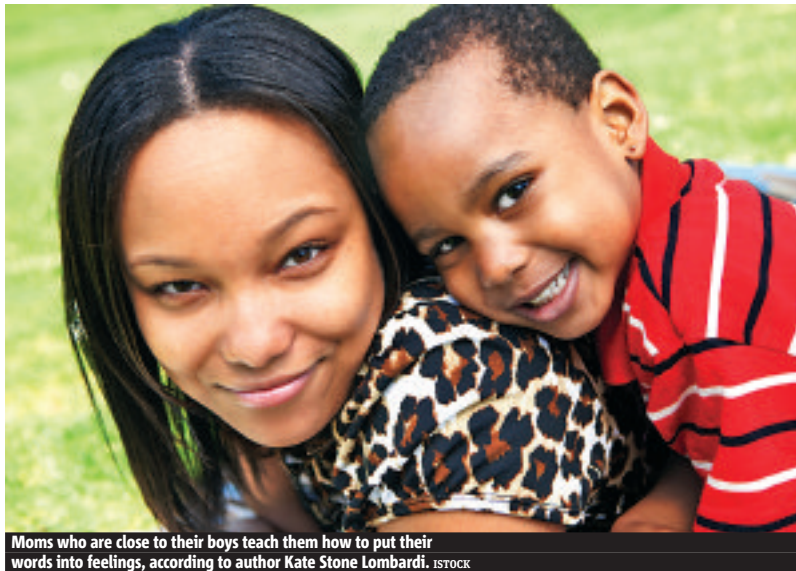

Reading. Mother-son relationships get an in-depth look in new book

MEREDITH ENGEL
Metro New York

With so much attention given to the special bonds between mothers and daughters, fathers and daughters, and fathers and sons, where does that leave mothers and sons? Kate Stone Lombardi, author of The Mama's Boy Myth: Why Keeping Our Sons Close Makes Them Stronger, sought to find out.

"It's almost been like the elephant in the room," she says. "For some reason no one has looked at the mother-son subject. The world has changed so dramatically and yet we're still sort of stuck in this time bubble when it comes to moms and sons, this idea that them being close is somehow dangerous or wrong. We are long overdue to take a look at this relationship."

The author says that society has been quick to reject the idea of a close bond between mother and son because the son can be perceived as weak and the mother overbearing. And while she's not asking moms to raise boys who require a maternal nudge at every turn, she does hope to inspire them to take a more active role in their sons' lives. We wanted to learn more.

Moms who are close to their boys teach them how to put their words into feelings, according to author Kate Stone Lombardi. ISTOCK

How did the idea of the mama's boy start?

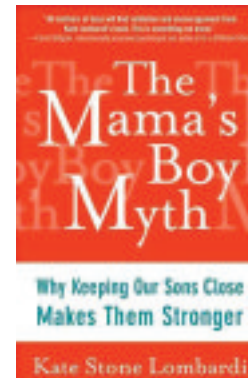

I think it goes back to the Oedipus complex. The Oedipus complex is a theory that Freud wrote in 1899 — basically, it's the unconscious desire for a little boy to sleep with his mom. Freud was really writing about the unconscious, and I think we misinterpreted what he was saying.

We turned it into the idea that normal, healthy mother-son affection and closeness is somehow wrong and dangerous. And that is just not true — being close to his mother benefits a boy, both when he is young and throughout his life.

Why are daddies' girls more revered in our society than mama's boys?

I think there's really a double standard. I think dads have a lot more freedom when it comes to their daughters. A dad (who) coaches his girl in lacrosse or even teaches her a "masculine" skill like working on a car engine is still a cool dad.

For some reason it's not at all the same with moms. If a mom tries to influence her son, people start worrying that she's gonna feminize her boy. But no one worries that the dad is gonna turn his little girl into a boy by teaching her sports. One professor at Bates College studied parents of preschoolers. The parents were totally fine if the little girls (wore) sports jerseys and played with trucks and blocks, but the same did not extend for little boys. They were OK if little boys played in the kitchen a bit, but that's it. There is a double standard.

How does society benefit from a boy who's close to his mom?

Moms who are close to their boys really teach them emotional intelligence. They teach them how to put their words into feelings. That is gonna serve a boy all through his life. One study showed (that with) guys who had a stronger connection to their moms, their wives and partners rated them as much better communicators.

Men who really like and respect their mothers like and respect other women.

Research has shown that boys who are forced to separate prematurely from their moms — I'm talking about little guys whose moms stop cuddling them because they think they need to toughen up — go on to have a hard time with women.

And the reason is they've learned that the first woman that they've ever loved has pushed them away.

Guys who have good, secure attachments with their moms go on to have good relationships.

Spring is here, so give your mind some cheer

GABRIELLE BERNSTEIN
Metro New York

Springtime ignites a whole new attitude in city-dwellers. The heavy layers come off, the Frisbees start flying and a state of newfound happiness sets in.

This spring season, amp up your good vibes with my tips for happiness.

Spring clean your mind

Spring offers us an awesome opportunity for cleaning house. Rather than put so much emphasis on spring-cleaning your closet, though, why don't you clear out some of the clutter in your mind? There's likely a thought (or several) that has been holding you back and keeping you stuck.

Get honest with yourself about the negative thoughts that are limiting you and commit to a mental spring cleaning. The simplest way to begin is to start each day with a more positive intention.

Each morning, affirm your desire for the day by saying: "Today I choose to perceive my life with positivity. I am willing to release the negative thoughts that have been holding me back from happiness."

This simple mantra will jump-start your day with powerful energy and a commitment to happiness. Making the conscious decision to choose happiness will begin your mental clearing process.

Take a sun break

If you work at a desk or spend too much time indoors, make a point to step outside to soak up the sunshine.

The sun has so many healing elements. When you're exposed to direct sunlight you produce endorphins that bring about a burst of positive energy.

Take a sun break once a day and let happiness shine upon you!

Plan a picnic

City-dwellers spend too much time eating takeout or obsessing over the latest hot restaurant.

This spring, take advantage of the park and share an awesome picnic. You'll find joy in preparing a meal for a friend and saving some cash while you're at it.

Bring your new attitude to the park, soak up the rays and enjoy your picnic!

GABRIELLE BERNSTEIN IS THE AUTHOR OF SPIRIT JUNKIE.

Sunlight produces endorphins in your body that can bring about a burst of positive energy. So make sure you take an outdoor break today. ISTOCK

Don't give the tax man a penny too much

Last-minute filing. No one likes paying taxes, but you can take steps to avoid overpaying

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca

There's a very good reason why death and taxes often occupy the same sentence. Neither is appealing to contemplate. While death can sometimes be delayed there's no avoiding the latter at this time of year.

As sure as April follows March every year, there is a stampede to file returns once Easter and Passover indulgences have been digested.

Alison's money rule

"Pay yourself first by double-checking all your tax deductions and credits."

Your friend in these last-minute situations is, in my opinion, the best tax book available for consumers: Essential Tax Facts: Simple tips for preparing your taxes so you can build wealth (2012 edition), by Evelyn Jacks, tax expert and founder of the Knowledge Bureau in Winnipeg.

Jacks points out that taxpayers leave thousands, sometimes hundreds of thousands of dollars, on the table over their lifetimes by paying too much tax.

It's tough these days to increase your income. But being vigilant about every penny sent to Ottawa and your provincial government is something everyone can do.

Here are some of the changes Jacks highlights for 2011.

1. Children's Arts Tax Credit Similar to the Fitness Tax Credit, parents can claim (or share the claim) for up to $500 if the child is enrolled in a broad range of artistic, environmental or cultural activities.

2. Tuition Tax Credit – Examination fee This is claimable for examinations and pre-requisite study materials purchased in order to achieve a recognizable licence or professional status.

3. Study abroad

The study period has been reduced to three weeks from 13 for students in full-time programs at Canadian universities and colleges.

So if you are off to Italy to study Michelangelo's David for three weeks as part of your degree, you can claim the tuition and education amount and withdraw Education Assistance Payments from an RESP.

Spend time with your taxes

Just how careful are you?

- It pays to be careful. On the TV show Million Dollar Neighbourhood, a review by H&R Block found that nearly a third of tax filers made at least one error on their return.

4. Sharing an RESP with a sibling Transferring from one RESP to another will not trigger repayment of the government Canada Education Savings Grant as long as the sibling receiving the funds is under 21.

5. Money from babes

The Canada Child Tax Benefit, Universal Child Care Benefit and GST credit can now be split 50/50 between parents (for payments received after June 2011), assuming they live with the child.

One of Jacks' top tax tips is a recommendation that couples (married or common-law) file taxes jointly to maximize credits and deductions including medical expenses and amounts for public transit, children's fitness and arts and the new home buyer's credit.

Team Canada's confidence grows with pair of wins

Curling. At 5-0, Howard and Team Sweden are only unbeaten rinks left at world championship

Canada's Glenn Howard posted two more victories Monday to remain unbeaten at the world men's curling championship.

Howard beat Norway's Thomas Ulsrud 8-3 in the morning draw before defeating Jiri Snitil of the Czech Republic 9-3 in the evening. Canada remained tied with Sweden for first place at 5-0 after eight draws of round-robin play.

"I sense the confidence is getting bigger and bigger," Howard said. "I felt really comfortable out there again tonight. My guys are making everything underneath me."

The Czech game was tighter than the result might suggest. Howard entered the ninth end with just a two-point lead and hit a nice double takeout to score four points to end it.

Howard and teammates Wayne Middaugh, Brent Laing and Craig Savill shot an impressive 91 per cent in both wins.

Norwegians. Ulsrud, the 2010 Olympic silver medallist, never got on track and made several uncharacteristic errors.

"We kept putting pressure on him and he was missing," Howard said. "The recipe for a win."

A back injury to skip Niklas Edin hasn't hampered Sweden's performance. Sebastian Kraupp has filled in nicely and guided the rink to a 10-8 win over France to keep pace with Canada.

Another medal favourite, Scotland's Tom Brewster, was in third place along with the surprising Liu Rui of China at 4-1. Norway is one of four teams tied at 2-3 while the other rinks are even at 1-4.

"I'm always talking about peaks and valleys," Howard said. "Our valleys aren't too bad and that's the good news. We're always up there pretty high. That was a really good game."

Howard shot 88 per cent for the game, well ahead of Ulsrud at just 56 per cent.

Unfinished NHL business

All 30 NHL teams close out their regular-season schedule with games on Saturday and there is plenty still at stake before then, from playoff spots to year-end trophies to personal milestones. Here's a closer look at what to keep an eye on in the coming days:

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cluttered conferences

In the Western Conference, Los Angeles, Phoenix, San Jose, Dallas and Colorado are fighting for three playoff spots.

In the East, ninth-place Buffalo are two points back of Washington and five behind Florida. They'll need to win all three remaining games and get some help to make the playoffs.

Battle for home ice in Pennsylvania

The Pittsburgh Penguins enter the week one point up on the Philadelphia Flyers and a season-ending meeting between them on Saturday will likely determine whether their series starts at Consol Energy Center or Wells Fargo Center.

Battle for freshman supremacy

A trio of players are still fighting for the rookie scoring lead, which could affect how members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association vote on the Calder Trophy.

Edmonton's Ryan Nugent-Hopkins and Colorado's Gabriel Landeskog entered Monday with 51 points each, one ahead of New Jersey's Adam Henrique.

Will Karlsson reach 80-point mark?

Ottawa Senators defenceman Erik Karlsson is down to three games to bolster his case for the Norris Trophy. His 77 points are 25 ahead of the next best blue-liner, Zdeno Chara, and he sports a plus-18 rating.

Presidents' Trophy pressure

Will the Presidents' Trophy go to Vancouver, the Rangers or St. Louis?

The Canucks are looking to become the NHL's first back-to-back regular-season champions since the lockout and enter the week tied with New York at 107 points, one ahead of the Blues. They each have three games to play.
